"Arragh! Throw it more lightly, will you?" Meng shouted angrily before stomping towards the pond. He reached the edge and stopped. He remembered what his mother had told him.

"Don't go near the pond," Meng's mother had instructed before he left home that day. He looked at the ball. It was floating not far away. He could reach it with a branch or a pole. He looked around. Against a tree, near where Seng was standing, he spotted a fishing net.

"Great!" Meng thought. "Bring that here!" he ordered as he pointed at the net.

Seng grabbed the net by the pole and scurried to where Meng was. He handed it to Meng and watched as Meng fished the wet ball up and removed it from the net.

"Can we continue, Big Brother?" Seng asked. "I won't throw it so hard now. I promise."

Answer the questions in complete sentences.
