Section D: Comprehension (MCQ) (5 marks)

Read the following passage carefully. Choose the most suitable option and write its number (1, 2, 3 or 4) in the brackets provided.

Do you know why pigs sniff with their snouts on the ground? According to a Norwegian folktale, it had to do with a woman who had seven hungry children. 1

The seven children loved eating pancakes. Since there were so many of them, their mother decided to cook one gigantic pancake to save time. So she took flour, milk, butter, eggs, sugar and a pinch of salt and made the thickest, fattest pancake you ever saw! 5

The children were so excited about the pancake, pushing one another around the kitchen just to catch a glimpse of the wonderful treat sizzling in the pan. They made such a commotion saying how beautifully thick and fat it was until the pancake thought to itself, "Well, I must be something very special. I am obviously too good to be eaten!" 10

With this thought, the pancake jumped out of the pan and ran out of the door. It ran down the road. The seven kids chased after it and yelled for it to stop. However, the pancake was too fast for them. 15

Suddenly, the pancake reached a calm river. It stopped because it could not get across. At that moment, a pig came by and offered to give the pancake a lift across the river. The pancake accepted with a sigh of relief.

No sooner had the pancake landed on the pig's snout than snap! The pig bit the pancake in half and swallowed it at once. The remaining half leapt onto the opposite bank and raced away. The pig tried to give chase but it was too fat and slow. 20

From that day onwards, pigs sniff with their snouts to the ground, hoping to find the other half of the deliciously fat, thick pancake. 25

Section E: Comprehension (Open-Ended) (10 marks)

Read the following passage carefully. Then write the answers for questions 39 to 43. (5 X 2 marks)

Akika had the most brilliant colourful feathers ever seen on a macaw. 1
In fact, sometimes, Akika shone so brightly that he had to be careful to hide from the hunters.

Living in the rainforest, Akika had a very important job. He had to screech loudly when he saw danger. It might be a panther or a huge 5 snake looking for food. However, the most dangerous were on two legs – humans. If Akika saw a human, he would immediately look to see if it was carrying anything. Empty-handed, the humans were pretty useless and weak against the strengths of the forest. If the human carried a sling-shot and some stones, Akika merely gave a small screech but if a 10 gun or rifle was spotted in its hands, Akika would take off while giving an ear-splitting screech.

The worst weapon is fire. Akika had seen how it was used to destroy huge areas of Akika's home. The bitter, choking smell of burning 15 leaves was more than the forest dwellers could bear. At least Akika could fly swiftly away from it. The frogs, lizards, sloths and all his other four-legged friends had to run for their lives. Many of them had since died.

Adapted from Akika's Story by Nicola Morgan

39. How did being brightly coloured cause problems for Akika?

40. What was the first thing that Akika did when a human was spotted?

41. When would Akika give an ear-splitting screech?

42. Why is fire considered the most dangerous weapon of all?

43. What does it in line 16 refer to?
