Section G: Comprehension [1] (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer questions 31 to 39.

Whales live in the sea, but they are not fish. Like seals and dogs, whales are mammals. They cannot breathe underwater like fish, so they come to the surface to fill their lungs with air.

The biggest whales are the blue whales. They are bigger than any dinosaur known to have lived. An adult can weigh as much as five trucks. A newborn calf is 5 heavier than an elephant and can drink up to 490 litres of its mother's milk a day.

Big whales need to eat several tons of food a day. They feed on some of the smallest plants and animals in the sea called plankton. For example, the bowhead whale swims along with its mouth open, catching millions of plankton. It has no teeth. Instead, it has strips of whale bone in its mouth that act as a sieve to trap 10 food.

Grey whales spend the summer in the Arctic Ocean. In the autumn, they travel thousands of miles south to have their young in the warm waters of California and Mexico. The mothers keep a careful watch on their babies to protect them from any danger. 15

These gentle whales are indeed remarkable creatures. We should do our best to ensure their survival.

Section H: Comprehension [2] (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and answer questions 40 to 46.

As a young horse, I lived in a large, brown stable in a meadow. Shady trees leaned over a nearby pond and water lilies grew at the deep end. It was a place with plenty of fresh air.

When I was very young, I fed on my mother's milk as I could not eat grass. As soon as I was old enough to eat grass, my mother went out to work in the 5 daytime and came back in the evening. We frequently galloped around the meadow in the evenings and met up with other horses.

Our master was a kind, humble man. He gave us a comfortable home and enough food. He spoke to us as kindly as he spoke to his children. My mother would always neigh with joy and trot up to him whenever she saw him. 10

Soon, I became a fully-grown horse. I would never forget the day I was sold and had to leave the meadows and go to Gordon's Park. My coat had been brushed till it shone. My master came to say goodbye to me. I put my nose into his hand as he patted my head. Then I walked away with a heavy heart. I had tears in my eyes as I left my first home. 15
