Tigers are easily spotted by their orange fur with dark stripes. They are the largest wild cats in the world. Imagine eight children on a large weighing scale. That is how heavy an adult tiger can be! Tigers are not only large in size but they can also run very fast. You might not think that such large and fast creatures need help to survive but they do.

The number of tigers living in the wild has gone down from 100,000 to about 3,000 in the last 100 years. What is the cause of this? Humans.

Tigers are hunted by humans for various reasons. People hunt them for their body parts as they can be used sold at high prices. These tigers' body parts are often used as medicine or decoration.

In the past, tiger hunting was a sport. People hunted them for the thrill and enjoyment. Nowadays, this sport is less popular because there are laws to protect the tigers.

In most countries, it is illegal to sell or buy tigers' body parts. However, as long as people continue to buy tiger products, people will continue to hunt and kill tigers. We can help to protect the tigers by not buying tiger products. Let's do our part to save the tigers!

"Get back to work, children!" Mrs Tan said. She was showing Nikita how to draw an otter. Azman and his classmates were in Mrs Tan's art room. Mrs Tan had told them that she would send the best drawing to an art competition at the National Gallery the next week.

The previous week, the class had gone on a learning journey to the zoo. Azman liked the giraffes best because they are the tallest mammals on land. They can even reach and eat the leaves from the top of tall trees!

The children quickly went back to their seats. Soon, everyone was drawing quietly again. Kevin saw Azman's teary face and gave him an encouraging smile. He patted him gently on his shoulder and said, "Don't worry, Azman, just try again."

"Okay... Kevin," Azman sobbed.

"Hey, Azman," whispered Tim kindly, "you can borrow my book. There's a photograph of a giraffe inside."

"Really? Thanks, Tim," Azman said. He cheered up and worked hard on his drawing. At the end of the lesson, Azman beamed with pride because Mrs Tan had chosen his drawing for the competition.
