Bob paddled in his canoe, with his spear beside him. He had paddled far up the river. But he had not seen a fish yet.

5 Bob knew it was unwise to float too far past the village. The river would begin to speed up in a short distance. There, the water became rough as the river narrowed until it was only a few miles wide. Only a few miles past this area was said to be the Great Waterfall. That was where the river fell off the edge of the world, where no one had ever safely returned. His mother had warned him many times about the risks. Yet, Bob refused to take heed this time. He wanted to make his mother proud when he returned home with a fish for dinner.

10 The sounds of the village faded behind him. Vines and trees along the bank were passing by more quickly. Bob's heartbeat quickened in fear. However, the thought of his mother counting on him to bring home their dinner spurred him on.

15 All of a sudden, a loud splash could be heard. Bob spun around. He spotted a large, shadowy creature, as big as his canoe, moving in the water. Large ripples of water could be seen on the surface. Bob caught his breath. It must be a big fish! He could feed the whole village with such a fish.

20 Bob's heart pounded with excitement. He held on tightly to his spear, aiming in anticipation. He needed the creature to breach the water so that he could see it clearly and take aim.

The dark shadow swimming beneath the water loomed as it neared the surface. Before he knew, the creature made a mighty leap out of the water again. It was what Bob had wanted the creature to do!

25 However, Bob did not throw his spear. He froze in utter shock. It was not a fish!

30 Before Bob could take a closer look to determine what that creature was, the creature had disappeared once again into the water. Its dive had caused yet another huge splash, showering the canoe and drenching Bob with the cold spray. Bob's flimsy little canoe swayed violently in the huge wave. With his heart in his mouth, he immediately grabbed the sides of his canoe, holding on for dear life!

Correct each word in bold for spelling and each underlined word for grammar. Write the correct word in the relevant box numbered 41 to 50.

When I was young, we lived in a dilapidated wooden house on the outskirts of the (41)
town. It stood on wooden stilts and had a steeply slopping roof of corrugated zinc (42)
sheets which made the scorching weather even more unbarebel.

I was the second oldest of the children. My siblings and I often ran about, and when (43)
our play got too disorderly, the whole house shakes.

(44)
"The house is going to colaps!" my mother would yell at us.

(45)
We seemed to lived in perpetual darkness. During the day, the nearby trees blocked (46)
out much of the sunlight. Whenever the sun set, the darkness would terorice us. We (47)
had no electricity and light kerosene lamps, whom gave only dim light.

Sometimes, as little children we were just afraid of the dark, and Mother would ask (48)
in a voice with a tinge of aprehention, "Why are you so afraid? What do you see?"

(49)
Although we saw nothing, her questions made us even more frighten. To ~~me~~, there was (50)
nothing more terrified than the prospect of meeting a monster. It was not until I had grown older that I dared to sleep alone.

Section K: Comprehension Open-ended (10 x 2m = 20m)

Read the passage below carefully and answer questions 71 to 80.

5 "Left!" "Right!" Our guide, Maldo, shouted as we paddled furiously. We had been navigating the torrential rapids of the river for four hours, zipping between rocks and bursting through white-crested waves. It was my first time white-water rafting and I was thrilled! My father and I had long dreamed of doing this. Finally, we set off with the rest of our family and some friends. Filled with excitement, I walked onto the riverbank towards the bright yellow rafts that would be our front-row seats to the river's fury.

10 We were a large group. Leading our troop were two professional guides. After completing the tedious Beginner's and Advanced Course, most of my family members and friends had had enough. Only a few of us – my father, myself and Maldo included were keen to go on. All that remained was the Extreme Course, a hazardous stretch of the river that only the most experienced had been allowed to enter. Maldo warned that it had not been fully tested out by rafting guides but his words only made us more eager for adventure.

15 As our jeep made its way upstream, I noticed that the rocks seemed to grow at an incredible rate; some towering well over fifteen metres out of the water. We finally arrived at the launch point and boarded our raft with excited screams. My heart began pounding as our raft hit the churning white froth of the first set of rapids. Following Maldo's commands, we manoeuvred our way out. My heart lightened. This isn't too bad, I thought. After slicing through the turbulent water unscathed, we looked at each other in disappointment, as if to say, "That's it?"

20 Our answer came at the final, most torrential section of the river. We greeted the rapid with roars. Maldo was yelling to paddle around a fallen tree trunk, but between our howls and our reluctance to be cautious, not a word got through to us. Suddenly, the raft hit the trunk, and the onrushing water started to tip us over.

25 Before setting off, we had been lectured about the possible dangers and what to do if we got into trouble. Should the raft begin to tip over, we needed to balance it out by shifting all our weight onto the rising side. It all seemed simple enough. But in the panic of the moment, we tried paddling around the tree. We were going against the current and the raft did not budge. We were thrown into the current. It had all taken just ten seconds.

30 I thrashed around underwater for a brief moment before kicking up to the surface. With my life vest keeping me afloat, I was dragged through a maze of half-submerged rocks. Suddenly, I felt my back hit a huge rock. I wrapped my arms around it gratefully but the impact had shaken me badly and I could feel my grip slipping. My fingers finally slipped free and I was swept down the river by the raging current. I was sure I was going to die.
